Building Recovery Together
LIVENGRIN[®]

Our Mission

Making sustainable recovery possible through professional, accessible, and successful treatment options.

Our Vision

Provide a process of change for those suffering from addiction whereby a life of recovery is achieved, emotional and physical health is stabilized, and family networks are improved.

From the desk of our CEO

Friends and colleagues,

The past year has been eventful, to say the least. The winds of change have pervaded every aspect of Livengrin's operations, from our treatment delivery methods to the stressful impact on our employees. Not even our executive management team was immune.

Our Livengrin family and the communities we serve, struggled with the COVID-19 pandemic in the form of personal loss that accompanied a steep decline in economic activity through lockdowns, illness, loss of employment, and overall uncertainty. Every sector through which Livengrin interfaces: education, employment, housing, and the legal system were impacted.

In 2021, our staff showed tremendous flexibility, strength, responsibility and resolve to support one another, our patients, and our communities- for this, I am incredibly proud of them.

Livengrin has a long-standing tradition of evolution, innovation and resilience that gives me a lot of confidence about the way we will deal with future events. For more than 50 years, we've navigated challenges in a wide range of addiction cycles, market conditions and industry dynamics.

I want to thank our Board of Directors, our community partners, and our employees for their invaluable role in fulfilling our mission through 2021. As you'll see on the pages that follow, our attention to growing our connections and impact last year gives us many reasons to feel optimistic about 2022. I know there are challenges ahead, and I look forward to tackling them with enthusiasm.

Sincerely,
David

Meet Alex

I came to Livengrin in October of 2017. I was so scared. I didn't know what to expect coming into treatment at a new facility for the first time. When I arrived to be admitted I was greeted by staff that wanted to help me get my life back. The whole process was really relaxed and made me feel safe, even though it was literally the most emotional day of my life up until that point. After I said my goodbyes to my family, I made my way through the rest of the admissions process. I met with the nursing staff, some of which still work here at Livengrin. The next few days were rough for me. I was detoxing from a long list of substances. I can remember I was a shivering, sweating mess. After about five days the worst was over. I was ready to move over to rehab. Again, I didn't know what to expect, but Mark and Harold were there to make me feel comfortable. I was assigned a counselor. I met with her to discuss what I wanted to get out of treatment and came up with a treatment plan. I made my way into the community. I met some cool people while here at Livengrin, some of which I am still friends with to this day. Every day was different while in treatment. We started the day with a morning community meeting, where there was music and laughing. We said goodbye to graduates of the program. I thought that was cool that the community rallied around that person to wish them luck and to give them their best advice. After that there were a ton of different things on the agenda. Lectures, group therapy, 12-step meetings, just to name a few. I worked on a lot of issues here at Livengrin. My counselor and I took a deep look into why I drank and used drugs. We even got my family involved which was an extremely important part of my recovery. Livengrin hosts a parent and family group which my family attended weekly. My mom even got plugged into Nar-Anon and started her recovery journey as well. Today, I am the general manager for recovery houses to help others like me. In March of 2020 I lost my job while COVID-19 was starting to take off. An employee at Livengrin reached out to me to let me know that Livengrin was hiring. I was so excited to have the opportunity to work for the company that saved my life. I am so grateful to have the opportunity to be a part of something that saved my life and my family. I am beyond blessed.

Building Recovery In Our Community!

Recovery isn't a single event or specific chapter in your life that you can close. Together, our alumni, volunteers & recovery community help patients stay motivated and empowered in their newfound and hard-earned sobriety. Our alumni & volunteers provide a network for people to meet others in recovery and remain active through monthly sober events. They provide support, inspiration, and guidance for current patients and their families.
